Wedding Gifts as a Source of Profit "I am getting tired of this," said an Englewood citizen; "I like to be courteous to neighbors and don't mind helping a young married couple to a lift, but I guess I'll quit. Here is an invitation to another I'll quit. Here is an invitation to another wedding. Of course it will be very swell, Hundreds of people who barely know the couple will attend and carry gifts just because it is to be a fashionable event and they like to have their names in the papers. Twice within the last year I have gone to iewelry or furnishing stores kept by acquaintanees of mine and there found for sale articles which my wife or I had given the proprietors at their weddings. Of course they were the duplicates, and no household needs twenty-three pickle dishes or nineteen spoon-holders, but I guess I won't go to any more weddings outside of my own family. I don't object to helping set a young couple up in their house, but I draw the line on setting them up in business."
